Description

The form, the design, and the research for a perfect symmetry makes that you can hold this dagger in different positions. Thanks mostly to the fact that you can place your thumb in two different points on the hand-guard, independent of the size of one's hand when gripped or if one is left-handed.

On the front part of the two G10 inserts, a thumbprint has been made, so that one can use it with the blade vertically, not only horizontally.

Gabriel A. Serman is an Italian Canadian Master ,and instructor of police and military units. Expert in various martial arts styles, specialized in the use of knives, and small arms. One of his biggest passions is the dagger, and in this model, he tried to enclose the most possible elements known by him.
